SUBJECT: COLOMBIAN DEFENSE MINISTRY SOURS ON ISRAELI DEFENSE FIRM

REF: A) BOGOTA 715; B) PANAMA 831

CLASSIFIED BY: William R. Brownfield, Ambassador; REASON: 1.4(A),
(B), (D)

SUMMARY

-----
11. (S/NF) General Oscar Naranjo, Director of the Colombian National Police (CNP), told the Ambassador on November 24 that Defense Minister Gabriel Silva was souring on the Defense Ministry's relationship with Israel. Naranjo said that the CNP's relationship with retired Israeli Major General Yisrael Ziv and his firm Global CST had been a "disaster." Naranjo said he understood Ziv was trying to make inroads in Panama and Peru -- and that he had shared his concerns with authorities in Panama and would do the same with Peru if asked. He noted that Silva overruled Colombian Armed Forces Commander General Freddy Padilla's decision to purchase Israeli UAVs. Government of Colombia (GOC) officials described their experience with Global CST under the "Strategic Leap" process as mixed. End Summary.

MOD SOURS ON GLOBAL CST

12. (S/NF) CNP Director Naranjo told the Ambassador on November 24 that Defense Minister Silva was souring on the Defense Ministry's relationship with Israel. Naranjo said that the CNP's relationship with retired Israeli Major General Yisrael Ziv and his firm Global Comprehensive Security Transformation (Global CST) had been a "disaster." Naranjo said he had provided this negative feedback to Panamanian authorities upon their request. He indicated that Ziv was now also trying to sell his services to Peru. If Naranjo is asked by Peruvian authorities, he will share the same warning with them.

GOC DECLINES UAV PURCHASES

13. (S/NF) Naranjo told the Ambassador that in a sign of this growing dissatisfaction, Minister Silva had recently overruled Armed Forces Commander Padilla's decision to purchase Israeli unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs). In late July 2009, Padilla had commissioned a delegation of Colombian military officers to travel to Israel to research possible acquisition of an Israeli-manufactured Hermes-450 UAV system. (Comment: This represents another sign of what is reported to be a distrustful and distant relationship between Minister Silva and General Padilla. End Comment.)

14. (S) GOC officials have expressed security concerns about Global CST in the past, and found it difficult to work with a private firm on national security matters as they were prevented from sharing USG intelligence with them. In February 2008, CNP sources reported that a Global CST interpreter, Argentine-born Israeli national Shai Killman, had made copies of classified Colombian Defense Ministry documents in an unsuccessful attempt to sell them to the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC) through contacts in Ecuador and Argentina. The documents allegedly contained high value target (HVT) database information. Ziv denied this attempt and sent Killman back to Israel.

ROLE IN STRATEGIC LEAP

15. (S) Colombia's defense cooperation with Israel cooled during the 1980s and 1990s, when some Israeli mercenaries reportedly helped train paramilitary forces in Colombia. Over the last two years, Embassy officers visiting the MOD and Colombian military have observed an increased presence of Israeli advisors. Beginning in December 2006, Colombia's Ministry of Defense engaged Global CST to help the GOC conduct a strategic assessment of the internal conflict (see ref A). General Ziv was a personal acquaintance of then-Minister of Defense Juan Manuel Santos.

16. (S/NF) The Global CST assessment focused on defeating the FARC and other internal terrorist and criminal organizations by 2010, but also included an evaluation of external threats including Venezuela and Ecuador. The MOD spearheaded the exercise -- originally named the "Strategic Leap" -- which was approved by President Uribe in February 2009. The Strategic Leap was subsequently rebranded as the National Consolidation Plan (PNC). Colombian officials have described their experiences with Global CST under the Strategic Leap planning process as mixed. Former Colombian Vice Minister of Defense Juan Carlos Pinzon told us that many of Global CST's programs and recommendations -- which carried a heavy consulting fee -- were already being implemented by the USG.

COMMENT
-----

17. (S) Over a three year period, Ziv worked his way into the confidence of former Defense Minister Santos by promising a cheaper version of USG assistance without our strings attached. We and the GOC learned that Global CST had no Latin American experience and that its proposals seem designed more to support Israeli equipment and services sales than to meet in-country needs. Global CST was not transparent with us, and tried to insert itself into our classified discussions with the GOC. Given the GOC's experience with Global CST, it is no surprise that the Defense Ministry is pulling back from them and warning neighbors that their deals are not as good as advertized. End Comment.
